Job Description

Mississippi Center for Justice seeks current 3L law students or recent graduates interested in working with us to develop fellowship applications such as those offered by Skadden, Equal Justice Works, New Voices, and other law school-based fellowship opportunities. The Center is especially interested in developing projects having to do with community economic development and/or housing on the Gulf Coast; consumer protection, public benefits, immigration and health issues in Jackson; and/or educational advocacy anywhere. The Center has offices in Jackson, Biloxi and Indianola, where we work on racial and economic justice in the areas of predatory lending, healthcare, housing, education, public benefits and immigration. More information about the Center can be found at: mscenterforjustice.org.

Qualifications

Law student or recent graduate

Salary

Based on fellowship award amount

Application Instructions

For fellowship applications due in September (e.g., Equal Justice Works Fellowships and Skadden Fellowships), please submit letters of interest, a short writing sample and a resume no later than August 2, 2019 to the contact person below by e-mail. Interest in submitting applications to funders with later deadlines should be submitted no later than 1 month prior to that funder's deadline. However, expressions of interest to the Center about any externally-funded positions are strongly encouraged as early as possible. We look forward to hearing from people interested in working for racial and economic justice in the Deep South.
